Where his expertise come from

Philip graduated as Bachelor of Computer Science in 2007, specialised in informatics, programming and already working for some big companies as Java Software Developer on various server side and client side projects. Participated in many Software Training Academies as lecturer and group mentor.

Since 2009 Philip's focus has shifted a bit to mobile platforms both web and native with the growing new mobile channels created by Google and Apple. Strong focus on native mobile technologies for BlackBerry, Windows Mobile, Nokia, Android and iOS. In a few years fully focused on creating whole digital experience for the customers covering server side, web and mobile client side.

After 2012, graduating Masters of IT Project Management, Philip started participating actively in software start-up initiatives and companies, growing his knowledge in business needs, client communication and team leadership along with the software development.

Late 2018 Philip joined Sofia site of foryouandyourcustomers, where he operates as a Senior Software Developer and Team Lead, extending his e-commerce expertise with the Commerce Tools Platform.
