What André Mahler offers

He is an expert in integral management as well as operational excellence and continuously and thoughtfully develops the integral management system and advises and supports you in civilisational aspects of your company.

Through his many years of international experience as a member of various management boards in different industries, he understands the concerns of employees and managers and speaks their language.

With an eye for improvement potential and a passion for optimisation, he can quickly gain an overview and come up with surprisingly simple solutions – as well as tackle them sustainably in project teams.

“Sustainable growth of companies and people involved is also supported by operational excellence.”

His background

André Mahler brings with him 20 years of global supply chain and operational excellence experience – including 10 years at the executive level in various companies with a management span of up to 500 employees.

He lived and worked abroad for 10 years in various countries and now communicates in 5 languages. During his professional career, he optimised, restructured and led national and international teams or entire subsidiaries from B for Brazil to U for the USA.

In 1999, as a graduate student at the Swiss Federal Institute of Technology (ETH) in Zurich in the field of Industrial Management and Manufacturing Engineering, he was the first intern to join the Nestlé Productivity Team to optimise a factory in England together with internal senior consultants. His cultural and professional thirst for knowledge then took him from Daimler subsidiary EvoBus GmbH in Germany to Spain as Logistics Manager and Portugal as Managing Director and Member Supervisory Board of a joint venture. After de-merger and his return to Switzerland in 2009, he worked for various listed companies. He was responsible for the Global Procurement of a business unit, managed the Global Supply Chain including After Sales of another business unit and finally worked for Komax Group for 7 years in the Management Team as VP Global Supply Chain & Operations and VP Global Operational Excellence. In Komax's pioneering Digital Information Supply Chain program, accompanied by foryouandyourcustomers, he was co-program manager and, among other things, project manager for the information model.

The connection of the physical and digital world integrated into integral management is now his passion. André Mahler would like to make the many analogies, also concerning excellence, available to interested companies, friends and employees.
